Difficult Decisions in Pediatric Care: Just Because We Can, Should We?

TECHNOLOGY NUMBER: 5446

OVERVIEW

Raise awareness of palliative care among practitioners and patients

- Educational film features case studies of five pediatric patients and families
- Engage experts, practitioners, patients, and general public

BACKGROUND

Palliative care focuses on the physical, psychosocial, and spiritual comfort of patients and their families. While the number of palliative programs has more than doubled since 2000, much progress remains to be made. Although the majority of the public does not know about the field, over 90 percent of people agreed it should be made available to patients and their families when made aware of palliative care options. By documenting patient experiences, this film examines how to best provide patient-centric care within the complex framework of the modern healthcare system and demonstrates how patient care benefits when palliative options are openly discussed and, when appropriate, initiated.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

"Difficult Decisions in Pediatric Care: Just Because We Can, Should We?" is available in DVD format OR via digital download (.mp4 file, ~1.1 GB). Each format is purchased separately. Please click the "Order Now" button corresponding to the format that you would like to purchase.

Technology ID
5446

Category
Content
Software & Content

Inventor
Kenneth Pituch
Linda Strodtman
Maureen Giacomazza

Further information
Drew Bennett
andbenne@umich.edu

Innovation Partnerships
Innovation Marketing Team
IPInventions@umich.edu

View online